

LAST OF THE JUNE RACES.

FERIDA WINS THE STIRRUP CUP FROM A GREAT FIELD.

The Dwyers Discover Another Star in Eclipse. Pierre Lorillard's Fifty Flight Wins a Race for All Ages—A Funny Streetcase.

The Coney Island-Jockey Club ended their June meeting yesterday after the most successful series of races ever seen here. A large attendance filled the spacious grounds before the bell called the horses for the first race, and excitement and fun ruled the hours until the last horse struggled in at the tail end of a comic streetcase.

The track was a little heavy from the late rains, but the contests on the flat were run to remarkably fast time, the favorites, as usual on this course, being slaughtered, with only one exception.

The Dwyers carried off first honors, winning the mile race for all ages with their three-year-old colt Eclipse, a colt that is rapidly becoming a star of the first magnitude. They followed in the second race with old Charles Gorham, defeating a fast field of ten in a dash of three-quarters of a mile.

George Lorillard's mare Ferida came to the front again, as she did last year, after losing in her earlier efforts. She ran off with the Stirrup Cup in a race of two miles and a furlong, making a hair-breath finish which brought thousands of spectators to their feet, and filled the air with vociferous cheers. Parole was at her throat when she finished.

Pierre Lorillard's colt Sachem had a walk over in the race for 3-year-olds. Turfman will do well to watch this youngster. If he matches race with Onondaga last Saturday had been a mile instead of three-quarters he would undoubtedly have won it, as he was running at over bound in the close finish. Mr. P. Lorillard's 2-year-old filly Flight also distinguished herself by winning a race of one mile and a furlong in a field of all ages, water-weights.

THE MILE DASH FOR $500.

A snug little field of fast horses first appeared at the post to run one mile for a purse of $500, for all ages, with weight allowances for winners. The race was won by E. G. Coffin, Jr., of Boston, 4; by Vauxhall, 121 lbs.; Dwyer Brothers, 6; Ripon, 3; in Lisbon, 106; G. L. Lorillard's, 106; Greenlan, 1; 3, by Vincennes, 110; and P. Lorillard's, 106; Sparc, 3; by Leavenworth, 98.

McLaughlin, of New Haven, Conn., was elected first runner-up. M. Lane, Director of the corporation, received 1,183 votes out of 1,838.

HARVARD UNIVERSITY.

BOSTON, June 29.—The commencement exercises at Harvard University were held in Sanders Theatre before a large and brilliant assembly. Gov. Long and staff were escorted to Cambridge by the National Guardsmen, and represented the State of the Union.

The seniors, led by the German

Imperial.

Henry H. Gorringe, of New York city, and Geo. A. Peters, M. D., of New York city.

The Keese prize for the best thesis in the Medical Department was awarded to Dr. James E. Stetson of the class of 1881. Robert A. Wilson of Cambridge, Mass., is appointed assistant astronomer in the Winchester Observatory. Frederick G. Kingsbury of Waterbury, Conn., was elected a member of the corporation, receiving 1,183 votes out of 1,838.

THE MILLE DASH FOR $500.

A snug little field of fast horses first appeared at the post to run one mile for a purse of $500, for all ages, with weight allowances for winners. The race was won by E. G. Coffin, Jr., of Boston, 4; by Vauxhall, 121 lbs.; Dwyer Brothers, 6; Ripon, 3; in Lisbon, 106; G. L. Lorillard's, 106; Greenlan, 1; 3, by Vincennes, 110; and P. Lorillard's, 106; Sparc, 3; by Leavenworth, 98.

McLaughlin, of New Haven, Conn., was elected first runner-up. M. Lane, Director of the corporation, received 1,183 votes out of 1,838.

SELLING RACE.

A big field of flyers faced the starter for a spin of three-quarters of a mile; purse, $500; the post. Swinging into the back stretch Old Salt had the lead by a neck from Greenlan, Ripon and Sparc, joined at the end of the bunch. The flyers took position at the start of the bunch, forming an elegant race which gave all the breakers a hope of winning. After striking the straight finish, however, McLaughlin, being held up, went out with a lunge, and the flyers, who had red and blue colors were sent in the bunch; the result was no longer in doubt. Drawing away from the others in the final furlong, McLaughlin won the race in record time. Old Salt second, two lengths apart, was beaten by Greenlan and Sparc. Time, 1:45½. Mutuals, $9.15.

THE METROPOLITAN.

At 10 A. M. the polls were opened for the annual election of overseers, the following names being used for the five vacancies: Edward Hale, Merrill Wyman, Darwen E. Ware, Edward H. Hovey, Theodore Lyman, James C. Gorham, F. K. Kidder, Roger Wolcott, Horace H. Furness, and Samuel A. Green. The poll closed at 4 P. M.

Here again he was interrupted by laughter and cries of "Give the skunk a show." You know, we are not all lunatics if this thing is allowed to go much further."

Old Salt tried to appear in earnest, but the flyers were still there, and he was not yet so far along that he could not stand his ground.

"For Heaven's sake, try and not so that the people will believe that this Legislature is not doing its duty," said Old Salt.

He was greeted with such laughter and jeers that Old Salt sank into his seat, evidently thoroughly disgusted, and began scolding those in the audience for their want of courtesy.

"This is an attempt to rub it in," he said, "and this is an attempt to rub it in." This was greeted with another round of jeers, and the flyers were still there.

"Old Salt has not yet got his head out of the water," continued Old Salt, "has lowered himself almost below the contempt of the people. We are now hearing condemnation upon condemnation."

Old Salt was now a rank and small

skunk.

Here again he was interrupted by laughter and cries of "Give the skunk a show."

"You know, we are not all lunatics if this thing is allowed to go much further."

Old Salt tried to appear in earnest, but the flyers were still there, and he was not yet so far along that he could not stand his ground.

"For Heaven's sake, try and not so that the people will believe that this Legislature is not doing its duty," said Old Salt.

He was greeted with such laughter and jeers that Old Salt sank into his seat, evidently thoroughly disgusted, and began scolding those in the audience for their want of courtesy.

"This is an attempt to rub it in," he said, "and this is an attempt to rub it in." This was greeted with another round of jeers, and the flyers were still there.

"Old Salt has not yet got his head out of the water," continued Old Salt, "has lowered himself almost below the contempt of the people. We are now hearing condemnation upon condemnation."

Old Salt was now a rank and small

skunk.

Here again he was interrupted by laughter and cries of "Give the skunk a show."

"You know, we are not all lunatics if this thing is allowed to go much further."

Old Salt tried to appear in earnest, but the flyers were still there, and he was not yet so far along that he could not stand his ground.

"For Heaven's sake, try and not so that the people will believe that this Legislature is not doing its duty," said Old Salt.

He was greeted with such laughter and jeers that Old Salt sank into his seat, evidently thoroughly disgusted, and began scolding those in the audience for their want of courtesy.

"This is an attempt to rub it in," he said, "and this is an attempt to rub it in." This was greeted with another round of jeers, and the flyers were still there.

"Old Salt has not yet got his head out of the water," continued Old Salt, "has lowered himself almost below the contempt of the people. We are now hearing condemnation upon condemnation."

Old Salt was now a rank and small

skunk.

Here again he was interrupted by laughter and cries of "Give the skunk a show."

"You know, we are not all lunatics if this thing is allowed to go much further."

Old Salt tried to appear in earnest, but the flyers were still there, and he was not yet so far along that he could not stand his ground.

"For Heaven's sake, try and not so that the people will believe that this Legislature is not doing its duty," said Old Salt.

He was greeted with such laughter and jeers that Old Salt sank into his seat, evidently thoroughly disgusted, and began scolding those in the audience for their want of courtesy.

"This is an attempt to rub it in," he said, "and this is an attempt to rub it in." This was greeted with another round of jeers, and the flyers were still there.

"Old Salt has not yet got his head out of the water," continued Old Salt, "has lowered himself almost below the contempt of the people. We are now hearing condemnation upon condemnation."

Old Salt was now a rank and small

skunk.

Here again he was interrupted by laughter and cries of "Give the skunk a show."

"You know, we are not all lunatics if this thing is allowed to go much further."

Old Salt tried to appear in earnest, but the flyers were still there, and he was not yet so far along that he could not stand his ground.

"For Heaven's sake, try and not so that the people will believe that this Legislature is not doing its duty," said Old Salt.

He was greeted with such laughter and jeers that Old Salt sank into his seat, evidently thoroughly disgusted, and began scolding those in the audience for their want of courtesy.

"This is an attempt to rub it in," he said, "and this is an attempt to rub it in." This was greeted with another round of jeers, and the flyers were still there.

"Old Salt has not yet got his head out of the water," continued Old Salt, "has lowered himself almost below the contempt of the people. We are now hearing condemnation upon condemnation."

Old Salt was now a rank and small

skunk.

Here again he was interrupted by laughter and cries of "Give the skunk a show."

"You know, we are not all lunatics if this thing is allowed to go much further."

Old Salt tried to appear in earnest, but the flyers were still there, and he was not yet so far along that he could not stand his ground.

"For Heaven's sake, try and not so that the people will believe that this Legislature is not doing its duty," said Old Salt.

He was greeted with such laughter and jeers that Old Salt sank into his seat, evidently thoroughly disgusted, and began scolding those in the audience for their want of courtesy.

"This is an attempt to rub it in," he said, "and this is an attempt to rub it in." This was greeted with another round of jeers, and the flyers were still there.

"Old Salt has not yet got his head out of the water," continued Old Salt, "has lowered himself almost below the contempt of the people. We are now hearing condemnation upon condemnation."

Old Salt was now a rank and small

skunk.

Here again he was interrupted by laughter and cries of "Give the skunk a show."

"You know, we are not all lunatics if this thing is allowed to go much further."

Old Salt tried to appear in earnest, but the flyers were still there, and he was not yet so far along that he could not stand his ground.

"For Heaven's sake, try and not so that the people will believe that this Legislature is not doing its duty," said Old Salt.

He was greeted with such laughter and jeers that Old Salt sank into his seat, evidently thoroughly disgusted, and began scolding those in the audience for their want of courtesy.

"This is an attempt to rub it in," he said, "and this is an attempt to rub it in." This was greeted with another round of jeers, and the flyers were still there.

"Old Salt has not yet got his head out of the water," continued Old Salt, "has lowered himself almost below the contempt of the people. We are now hearing condemnation upon condemnation."

Old Salt was now a rank and small

skunk.

Here again he was interrupted by laughter and cries of "Give the skunk a show."

"You know, we are not all lunatics if this thing is allowed to go much further."

Old Salt tried to appear in earnest, but the flyers were still there, and he was not yet so far along that he could not stand his ground.

"For Heaven's sake, try and not so that the people will believe that this Legislature is not doing its duty," said Old Salt.

He was greeted with such laughter and jeers that Old Salt sank into his seat, evidently thoroughly disgusted, and began scolding those in the audience for their want of courtesy.

"This is an attempt to rub it in," he said, "and this is an attempt to rub it in." This was greeted with another round of jeers, and the flyers were still there.

"Old Salt has not yet got his head out of the water," continued Old Salt, "has lowered himself almost below the contempt of the people. We are now hearing condemnation upon condemnation."

Old Salt was now a rank and small

skunk.

Here again he was interrupted by laughter and cries of "Give the skunk a show."

"You know, we are not all lunatics if this thing is allowed to go much further."

Old Salt tried to appear in earnest, but the flyers were still there, and he was not yet so far along that he could not stand his ground.

"For Heaven's sake, try and not so that the people will believe that this Legislature is not doing its duty," said Old Salt.

He was greeted with such laughter and jeers that Old Salt sank into his seat, evidently thoroughly disgusted, and began scolding those in the audience for their want of courtesy.

"This is an attempt to rub it in," he said, "and this is an attempt to rub it in." This was greeted with another round of jeers, and the flyers were still there.

"Old Salt has not yet got his head out of the water," continued Old Salt, "has lowered himself almost below the contempt of the people. We are now hearing condemnation upon condemnation."

Old Salt was now a rank and small

skunk.

Here again he was interrupted by laughter and cries of "Give the skunk a show."

"You know, we are not all lunatics if this thing is allowed to go much further."

Old Salt tried to appear in earnest, but the flyers were still there, and he was not yet so far along that he could not stand his ground.

"For Heaven's sake, try and not so that the people will believe that this Legislature is not doing its duty," said Old Salt.

He was greeted with such laughter and jeers that Old Salt sank into his seat, evidently thoroughly disgusted, and began scolding those in the audience for their want of courtesy.

"This is an attempt to rub it in," he said, "and this is an attempt to rub it in." This was greeted with another round of jeers, and the flyers were still there.

"Old Salt has not yet got his head out of the water," continued Old Salt, "has lowered himself almost below the contempt of the people. We are now hearing condemnation upon condemnation."

Old Salt was now a rank and small

skunk.

Here again he was interrupted by laughter and cries of "Give the skunk a show."

"You know, we are not all lunatics if this thing is allowed to go much further."

Old Salt tried to appear in earnest, but the flyers were still there, and he was not yet so far along that he could not stand his ground.

"For Heaven's sake, try and not so that the people will believe that this Legislature is not doing its duty," said Old Salt.

He was greeted with such laughter and jeers that Old Salt sank into his seat, evidently thoroughly disgusted, and began scolding those in the audience for their want of courtesy.

"This is an attempt to rub it in," he said, "and this is an attempt to rub it in." This was greeted with another round of jeers, and the flyers were still there.

"Old Salt has not yet got his head out of the water," continued Old Salt, "has lowered himself almost below the contempt of the people. We are now hearing condemnation upon condemnation."

Old Salt was now a rank and small

skunk.

Here again he was interrupted by laughter and cries of "Give the skunk a show."

"You know, we are not all lunatics if this thing is allowed to go much further."

Old Salt tried to appear in earnest, but the flyers were still there, and he was not yet so far along that he could not stand his ground.

"For Heaven's sake, try and not so that the people will believe that this Legislature is not doing its duty," said Old Salt.

He was greeted with such laughter and jeers that Old Salt sank into his seat, evidently thoroughly disgusted, and began scolding those in the audience for their want of courtesy.

"This is an attempt to rub it in," he said, "and this is an attempt to rub it in." This was greeted with another round of jeers, and the flyers were still there.

"Old Salt has not yet got his head out of the water," continued Old Salt, "has lowered himself almost below the contempt of the people. We are now hearing condemnation upon condemnation."

Old Salt was now a rank and small

skunk.

Here again he was interrupted by laughter and cries of "Give the skunk a show."

"You know, we are not all lunatics if this thing is allowed to go much further."